CHALLENGE

You like a challenge. But will your business school challenge you?

There's an easy way to recognize if a business school will deliver on its promise of providing the best in business education. When you see an institution display the AACSB accreditation seal, you know it has committed to continually improving the quality of the education it offers.

Your coursework will be rigorous, dynamic, and relevant, preparing you for the challenging and changing global business environment. AACSB-accredited schools have the highest-caliber instructors and leading-edge courses and programs that connect your education to the real world.

AACSB-accredited schools account for more than 90%

of ranked schools, globally.

73%

of graduate business school alumni (Classes of 2016-2017) say their programs prepared them a great deal/good amount to work in a global or cross-cultural environment.
